Current Comment

By R. H. K.

The opinions (if any) expressed herein, are not necessarily those of The Campbell Press.

Soon after The Press was "put to bed" last week, things began popping in Europe. As this is being written the grisly dance of death continues on several fronts to the accompaniment of heavy artillery, exploding bombs and the staccato of machine gun fire.

That reason failed to command the European situation, however, is not too surprising. Everyone seems to have been prepared for what, to many of them, must have been the obvious eventuality. And while the outcome of affairs caused considereable consternation among the peace-loving masses of Americans we can, after all, partially console ourselves with the thought that they brought it upon themselves and that it's none of our business anyway.

The problem—and not as much of a problem as some would have us believe—which faces us now is that of remaining on the sidelines. This should be easy enough; it requires only the exercise of reason. We must remember at all times that there is absolutely no excuse for this country to become involved, short of actual invasion.

To maintain strict neutrality it immediately becomes apparent that we but have to observe the provisions of the President's recent proclamation and fight to the last ditch his efforts to have congress alter the arms embargo in any manner whatsoever. Needless to say, tremendous pressure will be brought to bear upon our national legislators by the steel industry, aviation, Dupont (powder), and others who will want to profit from the unfortunate predicament in which Europe finds itself today.

The arguments in favor of leaving our embargo act intact are obvious: by observing it strictly we leave open no avenue down which might march an "incident" that would plunge us into the fray. No belligerent could point the accusing finger and say, "You're selling arms to our enemies; ergo, watch out!" And equally important is the moral argument: What right have we, a nation that has yelled for peace throughout the whole series of incidents which led to the present war, to supply the instruments of destruction to either side, that men may profit by the wholesale murder of their fellows. As a self-styled peaceful nation we have no right to participate in the war even to this extent, and I maintain, and will continue to maintain that dividends to the stockholder of steel, copper, aviation, powder, etc., accruing through the slaughter of men anywhere, had best remain uncollected.

The argument for the lifting of the arms embargo is pretty feeble. And while you will hear it propounded frequently during the interim before congress is called into special session, suitably dressed in high-sounding phrases, it boils down to just this: Profits for those who usually profit by war (and who would just as soon see us in it as not). Now, if you are one of those whose pures is swelled by abnormal activities in any of the aforementioned industries, engendered by war-time, it's no use for me to appeal to your reason. On the other hand, if you are one of those whose ultimate destination would be the trenches in case of war, or one who will be obliged to see her men go into the trenches, I can say to you, "Do everything in your power to keep the arms embargo at status quo. Alteration of the act might well be the opening wedge for the war mongers." At the present time all of California's national legislators, Republicans and Democrats alike, are in favor of retaining the embargo act in its entirety. To counteract the pressure that will most surely be brought upon them, every one of their constituents should let them know their current stand has the approval of the folks at home.

Other things to avoid, in our determination to remain at peace with the world, include putting too much credence in reports emanatiing from the "British Bureau of Information." Substitute "propaganda" for "information," recall the effect of propaganda upon this nation in the last war, and you'll have the reason.

Fully as important as avoiding the effects of propaganda is the task of building up the morale of defeatists who believe there is no way out for the United States. This group includes a great many people who have either failed to thoroughly analyze the situation, or are mentally unable to do so. They must be informed, and it is up to those of us who understand the situations leading to war, to act as informants—even at the risk of being called unpatriotic.

The President said there is no reason for us to get mixed up in the European war, that he believed we could avoid it, and that the administration would take every step so to avoid it. It is now up to the people of the nation to see that he lives up to this statement, and the first and most important step we must take is that of spiking his plans to sell to all comers on a cash and carry basis. If the voice of the people means anything at all, now is the time for us to raise those voices in unison to escape the repetition of America's folly—participation in the World war—the "war to end all wars!"

Supply Base Established by Sanitary Dist.

The Campbell Sanitary sewer project will have a supply depot in the old Hyde cannery plant. Here cement, pipe and working supplies and tools can be stored.

A 1000 foot "sleeve" of corrugated iron through which the sewer pipe will pass under the Southern Pacific tracks at Newhall street was installed last week by W. P. A. workmen. This is one of the larger pieces of work on the whole project and finished the continuous line from Fourth street and Burton in San Jose to Bascom and Naglee avenues.

Infant Son of Mr., Mrs. Maurice Phelan Is Dead

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice du Rest Phelan are extended the sympathy of many friends and acquaintances in the death Saturday of their thirteen months old son in Berkeley. The infant passed away of an intestinal ailment after every effort had been made to remove the trouble, followed by blood transfusions.

Mrs. Phelan is the former Rowena Farman, who was for several years the popular director of the Campbell Union grammar school cafeteria and domestic science instructor.

Tickets for Tea Are On Sale

Much interest is being manifested in the program and tea to be held at Cathedral Oaks, Alma, on Saturday, Sept. 30, beginning at 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. Ralph Hyde, chairman of the committee, with her co-workers are completing plans with the cooperation of the artists.

Those desiring tickets will please communicate with Mrs. Hyde or Mesdames Ira Abbott, J. A. Forward, Ira Grim, H. W. Jensen, Anthony Jurras, Ellen Mills, Florine Peake, S. Lloyd Selig, W. H. Van Dyke, B. E. Walton and W. R. Morgan.

Fire Boys Win 2nd In Contest

Chief Ed Genasci, his son, Donald, Tony Sanfilippo and Ray Dean of the Campbell volunteer fire department participated in a barrel rolling contest Saturday night at Mountain View against companies from Sunnyvale, Santa Clara and Mountain View.

This was the first contest of this type in which the local fire boys had engaged and winning second place was gratifying to them and their fellow citizens.

ON THE SPOT

- Items In Brief -

Mr. and Mrs. Kerlin G. Morgan and son, Kerlin, Jr., returned recently from a trip to Carbondale, Pa., where they visited Mrs. Morgan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Shroeder. Miss Hattie Shroeder, sister of Mrs. Morgan, accompanied them home and will remain for several months. The Morgans purchased the Merlin Bohnett home on Rincon avenue several months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Bachman attended a double-header between the Seals and Oakland at San Francisco Sunday. Between the games, both of which were won by the Seals, spectators witnessed a pageant depicting the march of baseball from its modest beginning 100 years ago to its present position as the "national sport."

Harry G. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Evans, is now stationed at Honolulu, on board the U.S.S. Richmond, flagship of submarines. The Richmond will dock at San Pedro Oct. 10 and Harry will visit his parents at that time. Young Evans' enlistment ends in May, and if he re-enlists he will enter the aviation machinists' mate school, being no. 1 man in a recent examination.

The Chamber of Commerce will resume meetings next Monday, Sept. 11 with a luncheon meeting at the Waltrip restaurant (formerly Baird's) at 12:15 o'clock. A full attendance is urged to inaugurate fall activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Purmort and his mother arrived recently from Duluth, Minn., and are staying at the M. E. Purmort home. The visiting gentleman has been a service station owner and is looking for a desirable location in this section of the state.

Gerald Harrington, an attorney of Oakland will address a meeting on the "Ham and Eggs" proposition at the high school auditorium Sept. 8 at 8 o'clock p. m. Otis Hyde is local representative.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Archibald are at Lake Tahoe for a two weeks vacation. They were joined over the Labor day week-end by their son, Winfield, and his grandfather, H. V. Archibald.

Mrs. Harry J. Starret of Lemoore, is spending the week here with her daughter, Miss Billie Starret, in the Ira Abbott home, while the Abbott family is enjoying an outing at Lake Tahoe.

Constable Harry Evans took an extensive examination conducted by the United States navy in San Jose Tuesday. Evans is a member of the fleet naval reserve and must be ready for duty in case of national emergency.

Students entering Campbell high school should make out their programs for the year before opening day, according to Principal Willard H. Van Dyke. All but a few of the students have made out their programs. There will be no regular registration this year, and classes will convene Monday morning, Sept. 18. The students can go to the office at any time now for enrollment.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Janssen and five daughters who had spent several weeks in the states, visiting friends and relatives sailed Thursday on the Lurline for Honolulu. They were bid farewell at the pier by the Misses Grace and Lois Bohnett, Mrs. Herbert Gardner and daughter, Connie, and Mrs. Frank Brausch.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerome de Rollin and daughters Valerie and Diane arrived Saturday from a summer spent at Lake Tahoe, and are visiting this week at the home of Mrs. de Rollins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Collins of McCoy avenue. They plan to leave Friday for their home in Santa Monica where Mr. de Rollin teaches in the junior college.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stray and son Walter returned Tuesday to their home in Ducor after a visit with relatives here, a few days of enjoying the ocean breezes at Santa Cruz, and Friday to Monday in San Francisco where they attended the fair and a radio convention.

The Elwood Baugh family will spend Saturday at the exposition, that being Bank of America day. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Hattie Baugh who will visit for a few days with her son, Clive, and family in Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Robson and son, Philip spent the holiday week-end in San Francisco and at the fair, where ideal weather has been acclaimed by all recent attendants.

Mrs. Maude Johnston and Miss May Martin arrived from Turlock Sunday to visit their nephew, Herbert Shadle, and Mrs. Shadle. They left to visit Treasure Island Wednesday, but will return Friday to spend the remainder of the week, leaving for home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coad returned Sunday from a 1700-mile trip up the Redwood highway. They were gone two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Krohn of San Francisco visited Mrs. H. C. Smith and C. T. Fawcett a few hours Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fish and sons, Ray and Harry, enjoyed the pleasures of a visit to Lake Tahoe over the long week-end.

P.-T. A. Play Shapes Up for Oct. Production

The play, "Happy Ending," to be presented by the Campbell Union High School P.-T. A. in October, is rapidly taking shape under the capable direction of Mrs. Archie Keesling. Mrs. M. F. Hughes, chairman of the finance and budget committee of the P.-T. A. is general manager of the production.

"Happy Ending" is a comedy in three acts, written by Don Pierre and produced by special arrangement with the Drama Guild publishers of Boston. All the action of the play takes place in the living room of a small country hostelry.

The various roles are being taken by Mrs. Ray Wood, Millard F. Hughes, Mrs. R. H. Knappen, L. Ben Howard, Joe Agostinho, Archie Keesling, Mrs. J. O. Leverton, Jean Clark, Mrs. Milton Harold and Mrs. R. B. Weaver.

Woman's Club To Open Season Monday, 18th

Monday, Sept. 18 will find members of the Country Woman's club assembling for a luncheon meeting which will inaugurate activities for the 1939-40 club year.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Fremont Older, and soloist, Hugh Cramer.

The committee in charge is Mrs. C. B. Field, chairman, Mesdames G. E. Farley, G. E. Jeffers, J. J. Arnest and E. L. Farnham.

Members should make reservations not later than Friday, Sept. 15, with either Mrs. Field or Mrs. Farley.

Rutherford Funeral Home Has Invalid Coach

The local mortician, David F. Rutherford has expanded his facilities by providing for convenient removal of invalids to or from hospitals or to any other location.

He has had his four door sedan remodelled so that a comfortable roll-about cot can be placed in the car.

Complete privacy of removal is possible by this type of conveyance, due to the inconspicuous nature of the sedan.

Mr. Rutherford is experienced in ambulance work and will serve all patients with thought, care and safety.

Drew Company To Fill Pack About the 20th

The Drew Canning company will complete this year's pack about Sept. 20, according to Paul Rae, office manager. The pack this year will be as large as that of last year, running approximately 300,000 cases.

Due to conditions in Europe, however, a difference in the amounts of various kinds of fruit was made, Rae said.

Alfred Beer Addresses C. E.

Alfred Beer of Willow Glen, graduate of Campbell Union high school, who spent some time abroad last year, talked to the Christian Endeavor groups of the Congregational church last Sunday on "Sweden and Central Europe."

As we have all been led to believe he stated that from his contacts with the German people, he found that the ardent supporters of the Nazi movement were the youth, who had been practically born and bred under that government and know nothing else, but that the older people are much less in sympathy with its workings and tenets.

Farmers' Pres.

Harold E. Pomeroy

San Francisco, Sept. 7—Harold E. Pomeroy, executive secretary of the Associated Farmers of California, Inc., has accepted an invitation to speak before the California Associated Concrete Pipe Manufacturers at their state meeting in San Jose on Sept. 8. The invitation to Pomeroy came from H. W. Chutter, president of the pipe manufacturers' association.

Pomeroy will discuss the activities and organization of the associated farmers, and the relation to present day problems in California.

Hitler's Aims Told Kiwanians By Rev. Mellinger

Hitler's objective was explained by Rev. William L. Mellinger in speaking before the Kiwanis club Tuesday, as the old German plan of a "Berlin to Bagdad" route for which the World war was fought. Warren Hyde presided as chairman.

Next week the club will go to Los Gatos for a division 12 evening meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 13. There will be no Tuesday meeting in Campbell.

Delegates elected at the board of directors meeting, to attend the California-Nevada district convention Oct. 11 to 14, are President Wyland R. Morgan; vice-president Herold W. Morton, and secretary Jack E. Murdock, with M. E. Purmort, W. H. Van Dyke and I. R. Abbott, alternates.

Registration Differs Greatly In U. S., Britain

A peculiar difference between registration for voting in the United States and the expression of national loyalty in England has been pointed out in a mesage sent out this week by county clerks of California. Under the English system, the county clerk, or the town clerk, or borough clerk as the case may be, makes up the voting lists himself. A governmental officer assumes all responsibility. He makes up what corresponds to our great register, and all the citizen must do is vote.

In the United States of America, registration becomes a mark of good citizenship. Every loyal American citizen goes personally to the county clerk, or to the deputy appointed by him, and declares himself as an eligible voter.

The responsibility rests with the citizen, in this country, and according to many of our county clerks, it is hard to see how a responsible citizen can be so irresponsible as to neglect his voting registration.

THANK YOU!

I wish to thank the Campbell Fire department and my kind neighbors for their assistance in helping to avoid the complete destruction by fire of all buildings on my property.

Zadie Rice

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Weaver and family had as their guest last week Mr. Weaver's father, Owen Weaver of Elko, Nevada.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—With Edward R. Stettinius Jr. as chairman, the newly announced war resources board can be expected to function swiftly and smoothly. The chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation goes from his home at 21 East Seventy-Ninth street to his office at Broadway and Rector by subway to save moments. He eats no lunch to save more time. He cuts through formalities with his many business callers and saves more.

War Board Chief Runs Days on Belt Conveyor

Stettinius is that reputed rarity, a rich man's son who has made good. His father became an industrial leader in St. Louis, and was invited to become a Morgan partner. The son lost little time after his graduation from the University of Virginia in beginning his business career, not because he had to, but because he wanted to work. He was 24 years old when he went into General Motors in 1924, 31 when he became vice president, 34 when he was made vice chairman of the finance committee of U. S. Steel and 38 when he took the top job as chairman of the board.

Modernity stands out in the strong lines of his figure, his crisp speech, and his attitude toward problems of politics and business. They say he nearly fainted when he first saw the office furniture of the 21 floors of the Steel Corporation building after he became chairman. The rolltop desks and similar items were unchanged since the days of Judge Gary. The refurnishing began immediately under Stettinius and was thorough.

Mr. Stettinius plays neither bridge nor golf; he takes his exercise on the bedroom floor, and occasionally goes out to his 500-acre farm in Virginia.

OWEN A. TOMLINSON, the man who forbade the building of an 11-foot mound on the top of Mt. Rainier so that it might retain its laurels as third highest mountain in the United States, was once a captain in the Philippine scouts under Gen. J. G. Harbord. Before that he was a buck private in the United States army, in which, altogether, he served 14 years, participating in the Filipino insurrection. He was born in Whitestown, Ind., 57 years ago, and in 1923, after leaving the army, he was appointed superintendent of the Rainier National park.

Holds No Honor Lies in Artificial Adding of Cubits

When Tomlinson, sorrowfully, refused to permit the Tacoma chamber of commerce to pile, as it were, Pelion on Ossa, thus bringing Rainier a foot higher than Massive of Colorado, he underwent some of the tribulations that used to be his when, as lieutenant-governor of the sub-province of Ifugao in the Philippines, he had some 130,000 head-hunting savages to handle. However, report has it that public clamor is dying down, a tribute to Captain Tomlinson's persuasive tact in convincing his fellow statesmen that little of the genuine honor lies in the artificial adding of cubits to stature.

GEN. JUAN YAGUE is named by Generalissimo Francisco Franco as minister of air in the new cabinet he has formed and of which he has named himself as premier. So far as advices from Spain are concerned, this is the most favorable news concerning Yague heard since the fall of Toledo.

Moral: Talk Up To Dictator—if You Know How

Outspoken always, he is the man who, in preliminary maneuvers of the advance upon Lerida, accused Franco of sanctioning the bombing of open cities and of sounding off too eloquently in praise of German and Italian contingents in the Rebel army. For this contumacy, report had him behind bars and later a suicide—both, to quote Mark Twain, greatly exaggerated.

Later, when he was removed from command of his Moroccan corps, a personal disaster, specifically, the garrote, was reported to awaiting him.

And so what? Nothing short of bestowal of the aerial portfolio and the consequent strengthening of the falange as the backbone of post-war Spain.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY HENRY W. PORTER

Roosevelt Appeals to Germany And Poland to Try for Peace; England and France Mobilize

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

In a desperate effort to avert the holocaust of war which threatens to engulf Europe, President Roosevelt appealed directly to Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany and President Ignace Moscicki to refrain from hostilities for a "reasonable and stipulated period" and attempt to settle their difference by

1. Direct negotiation,
2. Submission of these controversies to an impartial arbitration in which they can both have confidence, or
3. Agree to the solution of these controversies through the procedure of conciliation, selecting as conciliator or moderator a national of one of the traditionally neutral states of Europe, or a national of one of the American republics which are all of them free from any connection with or participation in European political affairs.

EUROPE:
Near the Abyss

Through the doorway of historic 10 Downing street stepped Neville Chamberlain, prime minister of Great Britain, dressed in somber black and more grave-faced than he has been for months. Not even the cheers of the crowd which lined the streets as he made his way to the Parliament building, drove the gloom from his features.

Standing in the house of commons, called in emergency session for the eighth time since the World war, the premier, twisting his hands and speaking in a strained voice, made a speech, heard by millions of listeners all over the world. No longer an "appeaser," Neville Chamberlain told the members of Parliament that Germany was "in a condition of complete readiness for war," that Great Britain found itself "faced with imminent peril of war," and that a German attack on Poland would mean certain and immediate war.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN
"Imminent peril of war."

"The understanding we gave Poland was given before any agreement was talked of with Russia, and it was not in any way dependent on any such agreement being reached," he said. "How can we, with honor, go back on an obligation which we had so often and plainly repeated?"

As he went on in a cold, firm voice reviewing the treaties which "formally define our obligations but do not in any way alter, add to or subtract from obligations of mutual assistance which have already been accepted" his listeners realized that he was telling them that Britain would go through with the present crisis to the bitter end, even if that end meant war. And the men who heard him, "appeasers" who had cheered his other "crisis announcement" that he was flying to Munich to talk to Adolf Hitler, now cheered his pledge that there would be no "appeasement" now.

Chamberlain opened his speech by the declaration that "new and drastic steps are required by the gravity of the situation" and that he hoped it would be possible for the Emergency Powers Defense bill, giving his government dictatorial, wartime powers, to be signed by the king immediately after its approval by parliament. Before that time the king had held a privy council at which he signed an order authorizing the government to mobilize the navy, naval reserve and the Territorials (home guard) when necessary.

Meanwhile the ominous tramp, tramp, tramp of armed men was sounding in other countries directly involved in the crisis. In Poland 500,000 more men were mobilized, bringing the total force under arms up to 1,700,000. In France 2,000,000 men were called to the colors.

On this side of the Atlantic President Roosevelt cut short his North Atlantic fishing cruise and hurried back to Washington to confer with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Undersecretary Sumner Welles. His first step was to send a personal message, via Ambassador William Phillips, to King Vittorio Emanuel of Italy expressing the hope that the king would find some way of exerting his influence in behalf of the maintenance of peace.

Five hours later Pope Pius XII, supreme head of the Catholic church, went on the air with an urgent appeal for peace.

Twelve hours before Great Britain's parliament met in emergency session to give Neville Chamberlain dictatorial and wartime powers, another meeting was held in the massive-walled Kremlin in Moscow. Its purpose was to put the finishing touches on an act which had brought Europe to the brink of the abyss of war. Chief figures at this meeting were Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, and Viacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet premier and foreign commissar. They were there to sign and seal in the presence of Dictator Stalin the non-aggression pact between their countries, a secretly negotiated agreement which provided one of the most sensational political developments in Europe since the World war. Under its terms, these two nations which have been bitter enemies for years, have agreed not to go to war against each other for at least 10 years.

Ribbentrop

Molotov

Not only did it free Germany from fear of having to fight enemies on the eastern as well as the western front, as she did in the World war, but it put an end to British and French hopes of getting Russia to join them in a tri-power alliance to "stop Hitler." Instead it gave him the "go ahead" signal for his plans for the dismemberment of Poland and it meant that if England kept her pledge to defend Poland, she and her ally across the English channel would have to do it without the support of the Soviet's 2,500,000 soldiers and thousands of planes.

That is the unmistakable meaning of Article 4 of the non-aggression pact which stated that "Neither of the two contracting parties will participate in any grouping of powers which directly or indirectly is pointed against the other party to this agreement." Little wonder, then, that Germany should hail this coup as the greatest in a series of diplomatic triumphs by Der Fuehrer.

Last act in this latest drama of world events which have been staged in Moscow was the departure by airplane of the saddened members of the British and French military missions who for four months have been trying to get wily Joseph Stalin and his advisers to sign a mutual assistance treaty with their nations. As they returned to their respective capitals and saw on every hand the feverish activity of mobilization they must have reflected upon the ironical fact that, when they left Moscow, the Soviet press was hailing the pact with Germany as "a forceful instrument for world peace!"

PAN-AMERICAN:
Argentinian Trade

To compete with the trade of "certain European countries" which have been "developing at our expense" and to remove the greatest single obstacle to a united front in the Western hemisphere, the United States will soon sign a reciprocal trade agreement with Argentina. Announcement of this plan was made in Washington this week by Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, who said that the negotiations would begin at once. Characterizing this as "a welcome constructive step in these unhappy times," Diplomat Welles let it be known that preliminary discussions, which practically guarantee the agreement going through, have been completed. When it does go through Uncle Sam will have offered his strongest inducement, the enlargement of mutual trade, to conciliate a nation which had stood at the other extreme of Latin America in policy as well as geography.

Sumner Welles

Next to Canada, Argentina was the most important trade outlet for the United States in the Western hemisphere during the past year with its imports from this country valued at more than twice its exports to its northern neighbor. No less important than enlarging this trade outlet is the fact that this new agreement may forge another link in Pan-American resistance to totalitarian doctrines.

AGRICULTURE:
Milk Strike Off

New York city housewives are getting milk again for their children after a nine-day "drouth" but they are paying ¾ of a cent a quart more for it. After two days of negotiation brought about by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, the strike of the upstate dairy farmers came to an end when the C. I. O. - supported Dairy Farmers' union voted at Utica to accept the compromise offered by the New York Metropolitan Distributors organization.

La Guardia

The compromise provided for a blended price to farmers of $2.15 per 100 pounds (47 quarts). The dairymen's union originally demanded $2.35 a hundredweight instead of the $1.50 they had been getting.

Two increases in price already had been made since the recent restoration of federal-state marketing control under orders set up by Secretary Henry A. Wallace.

FAR EAST:
Japan Says 'No!'

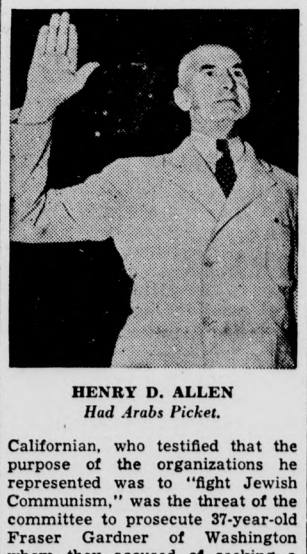
Insisting that the economic questions at Tientsin are "purely British-Japanese," the Japanese foreign office has rejected a British suggestion that other powers be called in to discuss the question. This rejection was Nippon's answer to British rejection of the Japanese contention that Chinese silver deposited in foreign concession banks should be turned over to Japan and that British support of Chinese national currency be withdrawn. The British had advanced the view that since economic questions concerned other nations, "all parties to the nine-power and other treaties must be given an opportunity to express their views."

Although the Japanese statement rejected this suggestion, it was careful not to close the door to further discussions of issues growing out of Japan's blockade of the Tientsin concession. Meanwhile the killing of two pro-Japanese Chinese policemen and the wounding of six others by a British policeman in Shanghai threatened to develop into another major incident in Japanese-British relations. Announced the Japanese embassy: "We take a grave view of this affair."

DOMESTIC:
Silver Shirts on Parade

A tale of visits with German and Italian embassy officials in Washington, of conferences with Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader, of making arrangements with a group of Arabs to picket a Washington hotel where a Jewish meeting was being held was unfolded this week before the Dies committee investigating un-American activities in the United States. It was told by Henry D. Allen of Pasadena, Calif., formerly active in the Silver Shirts of America and one of the sponsors of the American White Guard, short-lived successor to the Silver Shirts in southern California.

More dramatic than the appearance on the witness stand of the Californian, who testified that the purpose of the organizations he represented was to "fight Jewish Communism," was the threat of the committee to prosecute 37-year-old Fraser Gardner of Washington whom they accused of seeking a job as a committee investigator in order to spy on its activities. Gardner first denied that he had any connection with William Dudley Pelley of Asheville, N. C., leader of the Silver Shirts, but when confronted with evidence that he was receiving $50 a week from Skyland Press, Pelley's publishing house, he cried: "As God is my judge and may I never leave this seat, the Skyland Press, Pelley or any of the people connected with him know of my application to this committee." Unconvinced, the committee asked for action by the United States attorney.



HENRY D. ALLEN
Had Arabs Picket.

After having uncovered plenty of evidence of Nazi and Fascist activity in this country, the committee will next turn its attention to Communism, Chairman Dies has announced. First witness will probably be Gen. W. G. Krivitsky, formerly a high official of the Soviet military intelligence division and author of a series of magazine articles describing the work of Russian secret and political agents. Scheduled for deportation last month, Krivitsky's departure was delayed until the committee could question him.

FARM TOPICS

FARMERS LOSE CASH GRAZING WOODLANDS

Forestry Specialist Points Out Common Fallacy.

By R. W. GRAEBER

Farmers who graze cattle in woodlands lose money both in milk or beef and in timber and erosion control.

Experiments have shown that managed woodlands yield an annual return of about $4 per acre, and that the best open pastures yield about the same amount. However, when grazing and forestry are combined on the same area, the yields are much less, the total annual return for typical woodland pasture being only $1 per acre.

Why do farmers run their cattle in the woods? There is only one logical reason: They think they can pick up an extra dollar or two by letting the cattle pick a few buds and twigs in early spring, along with the low-growing plants and a few sprigs of grass or briars which may grow where a few rays of sunlight reach the ground.

This is a fallacy. A farmer doesn't pick up an extra dollar or two; the cows do not produce as much milk or as much beef as when they graze in open pasture; the timber supply is reduced; grazing woodlands induces erosion and loss of leaf litter; the fencing bill is higher.

Salt May Poison Hogs, Veterinarians Reveal

After investigating several cases of salt poisoning, veterinarians have found that most farmers are unaware that salt is poisonous to hogs if given in too large quantities.

A good example of such a case was a farmer who had 222 head of pigs which had been vaccinated with both virus and serum; seven of the group had died seven days after the vaccination and four more were sick. The farmer blamed the treatment. The sick pigs wandered about the pen in a daze, gradually weakening until completely paralyzed. Death soon followed. The owner said the pigs seemed to crave something, so he set out several blocks of medicated salt. A number of the pigs ate considerable amounts from the block, he continued. The salt was removed from the pens and no further losses occurred.

After observing several cases of salt poisoning, Dr. Hefferd says that inflammation of the kidneys and bladder, together with a hardening of the liver, are the most common effects of too much salt in the ration.

As a rule hogs require little salt in the ration and the practice of mixing salt with the feed or soaking mash feeds in salt water should be discouraged, as a brine is likely to form which may cause acute poisoning with death following quickly, leaving post-morten findings somewhat indefinite.

Farming Not Easy

Successful farming is not easy. It requires much experience in doing the various kinds of farm work and the ability to show others how to do this work. It requires training in business management and knowledge of the principles of plant growth, the feeding and care of animals, and the maintenance of soil fertility. Few industries require such a wide range of training and experience. Farming is not simply growing a particular crop or feeding a certain kind of live stock. It is an all-the-year-round business, involving the production of various plants and animals and the successful organization of the varying farm enterprises into a smoothly working unit.

Farming Briefs

After only 100 years of extensive cultivation, this country has destroyed, seriously damaged or threatened with destruction an area equal to all land from which crops are normally harvested.

Added steps in processing food to prepare it for the consumers' tables reduce the farmer's share of the food dollar. Wage scales paid by food processors were twice as high in 1933 as in 1910-13. Slicing bread before it is sold and putting farm produce in small packages are two of the later developments in processing food.

For more than a year farm products exports from the United States have been rising and imports falling.

New Motive Power Tested

Vehicles run by centrifugally ejected air or water have been invented by an engineer at Nantes, France. He has constructed a three-wheeled vehicle with one seat, equipped with a nine horsepower gasoline-driven engine, and claims to have attained 50 miles an hour with the machine. He declares that centrifugal ejection is 50 per cent more efficient than propulsion by propeller. At a recent exhibition at Nantes, it was demonstrated that an automobile can be operated by a rocket discharge at the rear.

Mother Church

While undoubtedly the first Christian church was founded at Jerusalem (Acts I:12-14), the mother church of gentile Christianity was founded at Antioch, in Syria, probably about A. D. 40. This is the place where Christians first received that title and was also the home of the first ministry of St. Paul, and the spot from which he set out on his missionary journeys through Asia.

"Don't," screamed Herrick. "How dare you? When you apologize, I want to kick myself and burst into tears. If you must wear your sheep's skin, do: we all know it comes off. But for you to bleat is indecent . . . Oh, yes, I can see you laughing, but that's because you don't understand. We're cast in two different molds. We come, I see, you conquer—I can't put it better than that. And I warn you, my simple serpent, I'm not going to let you go. You may take a Duchess' name and marry the Countess of Brief, but I knew you before they did and I'm not going to give them place. And when I change my name, as one day I shall—it'll mean that you'll have three houses, instead of two."

And there you have John Herrick, sterling, efficient, adroit, with a glorious sense of humor and the heart of a little child. His way with all was wonderful. Duchess, steward and scullion—he was at ease with the lot; and they with him. What is more, he inspired affection. It gave him pleasure to make his neighbors glad: and his neighbors recognized this and thanked God for such a man. Upon what I owe him myself, I will not insist, for I think these pages have shown that, but for his present help, I could have done nothing at all and Elizabeth must have been broken and Percy Virgil succeeded to her estate.

To three others I must pay tribute before I end this tale—for I shall leave it at Raven, which was for me journey's end.

Winter is still in my service, but soon will leave it to marry Brenda Revoke. I often think that his was a trying office, for all the time he stood upon the edge of the fray. No vengeance was his, and three times he missed the battle for which he longed. He knew too much or too little from first to last, and yet he never complained, but kept his eyes upon his duty and did it with all his heart. No servant was ever more faithful or gave a fuller measure than Winter did, and it gives me lasting pleasure to think that to some extent he found his fortune with me—for Brenda will make a fine wife and Raven is his idea of heaven on earth.

Of Elizabeth, what can I say? I think there is no one like her, but that is natural enough. Still, Herrick is a fair critic and the Duchess is hard to please. And both of them commend her. Of course she has her faults: but I am thankful for these, for otherwise she would be too good to be true. Her beautiful features have lost their wistful look, and a gayety, long confined, is now at large to leaven her dignity: but her ways are as gracious as ever, her gaze is as level, her shining head is as high, and, though I know her so well, I never can lose the impression that she in fact belongs to the age of chivalry, for she has in fee the haunting, fabulous beauty of ballad and story-book, and she never seems to notice that, wheresoever she goes, she always receives a duty which is not accorded to others because it is not inspired. "Was this the face that launch'd a thousand ships?" I sometimes think that it was. Though God knows I am no Paris . . . Perhaps Menelaus was burly, and could not tell "judgment" from "instinct," and went with scales on his eyes. In any event he set great store by his wife . . .

And as, when a play is over, the most illustrious player stands last and alone upon the stage, the latest to figure here must be Harriet Vincentia Saying, Duchess of Whelp.

Till the first day I stood before her, lying abed, I never had comprehended what personality meant—that indefinable presence which needs no help of the body to make itself felt. And then I knew . . . because I was immediately subject to something far greater than me. Had she taken no action and never opened her mouth, that sense of subjection must nevertheless have endured, because her spirit ruled mine from the moment I entered her room. It was the same with us all. High and low went down before her, as grass goes down before the scythe, and I can think of no one who could today stand up and meet her on equal ground. Proud and strong and fearless, keen-witted, humorous, wise—above all, full of that "drive" that made a Conqueror out of a tanner's stock, she moved upon a plane that others sometimes climb to—and find the air too rare for their physique. And so she came down . . . for us. The fine, old eagle came down . . . and showed us her royal heart. I use the word advisably. Royal is as royal does: and the Duchess of Whelp does royally, because, I believe, she knows no other way.

That I cannot compute what I owe her is natural enough. There are some debts before which arithmetic pales. For one thing only, I owe her Elizabeth's life: for, had she not seen and shown me the deadly peril in which, whilst Virgil lived, my darling must be, I should never have gone to keep watch on the turret-stair. Then, again, it was she that had me into the castle and gave me the chance of doing whatever I did.

Unearthly shrewd—and swift to act upon her shrewdness, handling men and women as a horse-master handles a horse, filling the weaker vessel with the virtue that ran in her veins, kind and understanding and generous, using us pygmies as equals, yet asking far less of us than she did of herself—from the hour that we called upon her she was the driving force behind all we did.

Though now there is no more to be done, our allegiance persists . . .

"Tracery is her wash-pot; over Brief hath she cast out her shoe."

The mot, which is Herrick's, is juste.

And we are as proud as content, because there is only one "Old Harry the Great."

Miss College Girl Is Engaging Attention of Fashion Designers

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT'S no secret as to who has been chosen to play the part of leading lady on the stage of fashion during the early fall days—College Girl is her name. To this important personage all fashiondom is paying homage at the present moment. On every side you are reminded that the idea is motivating to cater to the whims and wardrobe needs of the girl who is going away to school.

The style program arranged for Miss College Girl and her younger schoolgirl sister fairly teems with excitement. For instance, there is the new bustle dress. The idea has taken the collegiate set by storm. The quaint bustle dresses that grandmothers galavanted in as girls in the '80s are actually proving inspiration for frocks that the modern girl will wear this fall.

The highpoints of these oldtime silhouettes are being revived such as waistlines of vanishing inches, slim corseted midriffs and wide back-swirling skirts interpreted in novel bustle treatments but modified so cleverly they are made thoroughly practical and wearable for this day and age. Then there is the new vogue that calls for a velvet or velveteen jacket worn with a gay plaided wool skirt or a contrasting or matched solid color as fancy dictates. The decided military air that the new fashions take on is also a big factor in the new mode and most outstanding of all is the importance attached to fine materials.

These and other significant style trends were revealed at their glamorous best in an advance fall fashion revue staged by the Style Creators of Chicago. The three models pictured were especially applauded by the audience of visiting merchants as fashions that are representative of what the up-to-date fashion-alert girl will be selecting for her going-away-to-school wardrobe.

The clever little date frock of shepherd check velveteen shown to the left in the group is sure to enjoy a gay campus career. Its cunning tunic bustleback and its full circular-cut skirt gives it swank and distinction such as collegiate fashionables demand. Its red suede belt supplies a fetching dash of color. Approval for the new bustle-back dresses is assured for being interpreted in simple words, bustle-back is merely a way of saying "back fullness" achieved in ingenious ways that are conservative and wearable without being overdone.

The suit to the right is very style-revealing, stressing as it does the continued triumph in the mode of richly colorful striped woolens. The stripes, the plaids and the marvelous artistry with which designers combine them with monotones in related tone simply hold one spellbound. The gorgeous striped wool that fashions the costume suit keys to the smartest fall colors, harmonizing vibrant greens with luscious blackberry tones. The skirt is all-around pleated. The boxy jacket tops an emerald green velvet blouse closing with novel key-and-keyhole ornaments. An oversize quill tops the moss green sailor hat.

You may expect to see gay little velvet jackets dotted all over the college campus. The girl centered in the picture wears a snug black velveteen jacket quite military looking as so many of the newer fashions are, with a plaid pleated skirt that introduces an artful blend of grape, pink and yellow tones, climaxed with a sweater in warm yellow hues. Juniors, likewise college sophisticates, simply dote on the new plaids and stripes. A Scotch cap of black velvet with satin ribbon streamer, together with the plaid carries the message that fashions for young folks have gone very Scotch this season.

PATTERN SEWING CIRCLE DEPARTMENT

DO YOU take a woman's size? Then here is a lovely dress for you, (1799) youthful yet sophisticated, with clever bodice detailing, to create a round-bosomed effect, and a paneled skirt that makes your hips look narrow. It's a perfect style for luncheons and club affairs, yet not too dressy for street and shopping wear, too. Flat crepe, thin wool and rayon jersey are smart materials for this.

Princess Lines and Shirring.

Business and college girls will like the slim lines and simplicity of this very attractive dress (1780), with princess skirt cut high in the front, shirred shoulders, and flaring revers that frame your face becomingly. For this, choose flat crepe, taffeta or thin wool, with revers in white or a pastel tint.

The Patterns.

No. 1799 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 34 requires 5⅜ yards of 39 inch material. ⅓ yard of lace for vestee.

No. 1780 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, and 40. Size 14 requires 5 yards of 39 inch material; ⅓ yard contrasting.

Historical California Trees Recall Pioneer Exploits

Memories of Kit Carson, Mark Twain and California's beloved mission priest, Father Junipero Serra, are kept alive by a handful of historic trees still standing in widely separated parts of the state.

From the files of old newspapers and historical documents, Robert E. Jones, associate forester of Sequoia National park, has retraced the passing of significant epochs in the state's history as marked by the now-famous oaks and junipers.

Oldest of the noted trees is the gnarled Cathedral oak which rides the cliff of Pasadena's rustic Arroyo Seco park. Its age has been estimated at 600 years.

Linked With Padres.

The history of the tree is bound closely with the story of the Spanish padres in California. When Casper de Portola in 1770 led his party of 66 soldiers, muleteers and Indians on the first overland trip to northern California, he was accompanied by Padre de Crespi, friend and companion of Padre Juniperro Serra.

The story goes that on Easter morning of 1770 the band of weary explorers stopped beneath Cathedral oak where Padre Crespi conducted the first Easter services on California soil. In later years the tree became a favorite resting place of the Spanish padres as they traveled from one mission to another. A bell was hung from the branches to toll the hour of the morning mass.

To mark the passing of the Spanish reign and the coming of the Americans, there stood for many years the famed Kit Carson juniper tree at the summit of what is now Carson pass in the Sierras Nevadas.

Carson Relic Preserved.

Carson, the old Indian scout who aided John Fremont in his California expedition, had blazed the juniper as a landmark and left his name carved in the bark. The tree was cut down in later years, but the part bearing Carson's name was preserved.

These historic trees tell the story of literary men as well as of explorers and of Indian fighters.

Two of the most noted of the trees associated with literary men are Mark Twain oak and Jack London oak. Mark Twain oak grows on Jackass hill in Toulomne county.

Glass Reduces Spoilage

Discomfort of humans and spoilage of show-window goods, caused by the hot rays of the sun, are being reduced by a new type of glass scientists call aklo, which absorbs the infra-red rays that carry approximately one-half of the sun's heat. The glass is being used by merchants to lengthen the lives of their show-window displays by keeping flowers from wilting, bakery goods from spoiling and fabrics from fading, for example. Outer panes of heat-absorbing on sides of a house or office most exposed to the sun have been found to assist greatly in controlling temperatures and reducing the load on air-conditioning equipment. Railroad companies are using the new glass on coaches to eliminate passenger discomfort caused by the hot sun pouring through car windows.

High Color Tweed

Here is a smart version of the costume suit that combines plain woolen with gay tweed. The fitted jacket is of yellow and black tweed in a diagonal weave. Yellow and gold tones are held in high favor according to what is showing in advance Paris collections. The costume includes a jacket, swagger coat and skirt. This idea of both jacket and topcoat done in matching color scheme is very practical. The saucer brim hat is of black felt.

Offers Solution For One Problem

For many women, the most trying coat length of recent inspiration is the rather popular just-below-the-waist length that nips in at the midriff and hugs the hips.

It is a good style for a slender woman with a streamlined figure and is being shown in any number of varieties, of which one of the most popular is a monotone wool jacket worn over a gay print dress. But the problem is not so simple for those who border on plumpness.

One suggestion is that the slightly swallow-tail version deals more kindly with the heavy woman.

Two-Skirt Outfit Real Money-Saver

A money-saver for the bride consists of a two-skirt suit of very sheer wool or crepe, designed with a suave fitted jacket. The street-length skirt can be worn with the jacket and printed crepe or organdy blouses to make a smart runabout costume by day.

A floor-length skirt of the same material, combined with the jacket and a sheer chiffon blouse make a chic dinner costume for boat and hotel wear in the evening.

New Coat Silhouettes

Coats are no longer a simple matter of straight boxy lines or fitted and flared effects, for Parisian designers are showing intricate details of cut and design in their most recent collections.

IT'S YOUR TURN NOW

Judging from the lively volume of protest, there may be more raving than saving over the new plan requiring all California car owners to become their own tax assessors.

In the happy, bygone days, determining the size of the "in lieu" property tax on a machine was easy as waiting for rain. A postcard merely arrived from Sacramento stating the amount.

But no more will owners be kept posted by postcards . In the hope of making a saving, which many doubt, tax schedules will be posted in auto clubs and motor vehicle department offices, where Mr. John Motorist must betake himself to assess his car.

But will this actually achieve a saving for the state? In California there are not ten or one hundred thousand car owners, but more than two million. Its 2,213,000 private passenger cars and 221,000 motor carriers contribute $69,000,000 a year to the state and counties.

Though the state's two and a half million highway users produce this mammoth pile of dollars, they'll have to submit to the added burden of a tax-checking job.

If it works, well and good. If it results in confusion, delay, and too much argumentative correspondence between John Motorist and Sacramento, the white hope of savings may be strangled by the sheer costliness of red tape. Though the motive is sound, the method has yet to prove itself.

ADMISSION DAY

California is 89 years young this week.

With four-score and nine shining candles on her birthday cake, California honors her birth as a state of the union on Sept. 9.

The adventurous road California has traveled since 1850 provides a story of epic proportions. Gold, it is said, made California, and the aura of those pioneer days still hovers over its name. Gold from the earth and rivers is still a source of riches to be reckoned with, but in the black gold of her oil resources and in the green gold of her agricultural lands, the state has broadened the domain of her empire far beyond the dreams of the early mission padres and the first settlers.

From the pastoral age of a century ago when this territory was an isolated outpost on the western frontier, California has grown to be one of the most productive and wealthiest of states. It took men of courage and vision to make it so. Being still rich in vast resources, with that same courage and vision California can look confidently toward the future. A state only 89 years young has only begun to make history.

ADULTS GO TO SCHOOL

Are we falling down on the job of equipping ourselves with the means of becoming successful breadwinners?

Startling, indeed, is the report of California's department of education last week, citing the dearth of skilled workers in this state. Its current survey found some 110,000 jobs in need of competently trained workmen. And it found, which is more significant, some 110,000 Californians, many of them desperately in need of employment, who completely lacked the training to fill the bill.

But, happily, Californians seem rapidly to be growing aware of this serious shortcoming. Registration in vocational and evening high schools in many parts of the state is reaching a new high this fall, as adults of all ages signify their determination to gain, through commercial and technical training courses, sure weapons for fighting the spectre of unemployment. Certainly the need of vocational training has at no time been greater than today, with the demand for skilled workers exceeding the supply. And California can congratulate herself that the depression has not made the calamitous inroads into her educational system other states have suffered. True, the fantastic 30-Thursday scheme, loaded as it is with cruelly deceptive jokers, could disrupt the state's finances and drastically curtail the educational system. For this reason, the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, the state teachers' association, and scores of outstanding educators, emphatically condemn that dangerous proposal.

Education has rightly been called the foundation of democracy. It can never profit California to weaken or undermine that foundation.

VICTORY FOR CHINA?

Waving a frayed olive branch of peace, Japan today charts a course of appeasement toward the United States and Great Britain. Jilted by Germany, and left to confront the Russian bear single-handed, a worried Nippon announces she will press urgently to renew friendly relations with the democracies. But peace in the Orient is still far distant.

The mastery of China remains the steadfast star of Japan's policy, a policy which has beaten vainly for two years against China's flint-like resistance in defense of her sovereignty. China is confident victory will be hers ultimately, and that confidence is shared not alone by her leaders. It is manifest in the united sentiment of her millions of people.

Far from preparing to bow her head after two years' struggle, China is redoubling efforts to strengthen her far-flung defenses. Finding those defenses endangered by a woefully mismanaged and inadequate system of transport, she has turned to America's technical skill for aid. This week a corps of transportation experts arrived in China to overhaul that nation's bogged-down highway transport system, today China's sole means of securing desperately needed supplies. Placing her highway operations in efficient American hands, China profits by the experience of the 48,000 American communities which wholly depend on motor transport. To them, the highway carrier has proved more than efficient and inexpensive. It has assured their existence, given them a life-line of commerce. Finding her own existence at stake, China wisely prepares to strengthen her vital artery of transport.

With the unity of the Chinese people increasing as the warfare drags on, China's morale grows stronger while Japan's grows weaker. Who knows? The victory may soon be China's.

CALIFORNIA IN BUSINESS

"A nation half free, half slave," posed a serious dilemma for pre-Civil war America.

On a lesser scale, America wrestles with another contradictory dilemma today, seeking a just solution to the problem of how long the nation's 25 million producing families can support five milloin non-producing families without eventually going into bankruptcy themselves.

On the recommendation of his commission on re-employment, Governor Olson has this week launched California into a large-scale production-for-use program in the belief consuming and producing cooperatives provide a key to this problem. Southern California becoming the first testing-ground of this plan ultimately envisions placing 250,000 relief clients in production-for-use units, each unit requiring an outlay of $350,000 and comprising 5000 relief clients. Members of the consumer co-ops will buy their clothing, household goods, and food, directly from these consumer stores just as they now do at privately managed ones. That, in brief, is the plan.

The unanswered question is whether private enterprise can long survive against state subsidized enterprise. If a private enterpriser fails, he is through. If a state enterprise fails, it requests another appropriation—derived from tax funds paid by the private businessman! Logically, there is no limit to the expansion of state-operated businesses . Waste and inefficiency which penalize private enterprise, do not deter its course. Can California wage-earners and taxpayers, whose incomes are entirely derived from private business, put state enterprise into direct competition with the source of their own livelihood, and yet feel no harmful effects?

There are those who say "Yes." However, it has never yet proved possible to milk a cow at both ends.

IT'S FAIR TIME!

Fair days are booming in California!

With the state fair at Sacramento in full swing this week, and the fair at Treasure Island holding fast to its mid-summer attendance peak, there's small need for Californians to take up the refrain, "Come to the fair!" Most of them are already singing it.

Last year attendance at the Sacramento spectacle broke all the nation's records for state fair popularity, and with an equally imposing array of exhibits this year, California should hold fast to her position as a top-ranking impresario of outstanding fairs.

This week offers Californians a fine opportunity to get acquainted with their state, to see portrayed by pageantry and exhibits at two major fairs, its romantic history, its achievements in education, the arts and sciences, and the productive power of its fields and factories. These are things worth knowing and seeing. Why miss your chance?

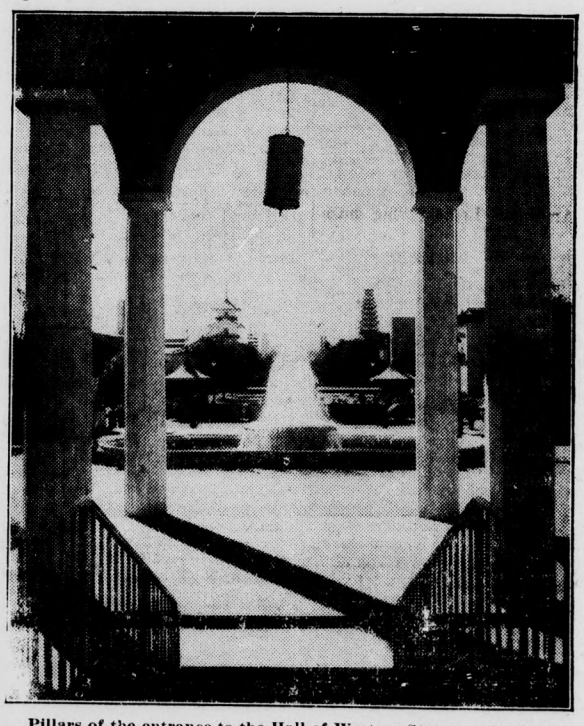
Fair Court of Seven Seas

Ruled over by the stately 400-foot Tower of the Sun, the beautiful Court of the Seven Seas at the Golden Gate International Exposition is a favorite with Fairgoers. Soft colored streamers dance gaily in the gentle breeze as they stretch from the crows' nests that mark the Court, down to the bottom of the masts. Each mast serves as a memorial to the gallant ships of the old sail days that built up American supremacy on the Pacific seas.

Pillars of West at S. F. Fair



Pillars of the entrance to the Hall of Western States at the Golden Gate International Exposition frame the sparkling fountain in the courtyard. In the background may be seen the pagoda towers of the Japanese pavilion (left) and the Netherlands-Indies pavilion (right). Exhibits of the 11 western states inside the hall portray the colorful history and progress of the West.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

Hate and class prejudice—ruthlessly engendered and cunningly fanned into flame—have been the favorite weapons of demagogues and rogues ever since the first political opportunist climbed on a soap box.

Agitators and dictators, charlatans and revolutionaries invariably beat the tom-toms against class, race, or religion as a means of whipping their followers into a frenzy of hatred that will blind them to their own devious objectives.

In Germany, Hitler has directed his campaign of hate at Jews and Catholics.

In Russia, Stalin diverts the people's attention from their bitter poverty by wholesale firing-squad purges.

In Japan, impoverished by war, the war-lords preach hate against helpless China.

And in America, politicians with nothing to offer, but ambitious for personal advancement, all too often resort to their own petty campaigns of hate—against farmers, business men, the "tories," "big land owners" and the capitalistic system.

The red agitator uses the same weapons. The professional promoter also makes use of them.

California has good reason to be on its guard at the present time against the propaganda of specialists in hate—for they are boldly at work, seeking to turn class against class; endeavoring to sow the seeds of hatred with every medium at their command.

Harry Bridges, testifying at his deportation hearing, shouts his hatred of employers.

The People's World, Communist daily newspaper of San Francisco, preaches hate against farmers, Republicans, "renegade Democrats," the American Federation of Labor, the American Legion, "big business," the "kept press" and anyone who dares to dispute the Soviet doctrine.

"National Ham and Eggs," official organ of the 30-Thursday pension movement, inflames its readers with a campaign of hate against the associated farmers, the banks, "bought-and-paid-for newspapers," merchants (except for those who endorse Ham and Eggs and advertise in its columns), public officials, business and sundry others.

But chiefly the pension publication hammers away with its message of hate against farmers, banks and business—picturing food being burned so the poor can't eat it; bannering the headline, "California Jobless Going Insane"; charging that "huge dairy distributing corporations" are freezing the price of milk so high that children are underfed; accusing the banks of preying upon the people and charging business with crimes unspeakable.

California "liberals" who read The People's World should ask themselves: "What is truth—and what is propaganda? Why, if their cause is good, must they resort to a campaign of hate?"

And California's elder citizens, who are contributing their dimes and dollars to the coffers of the Ham and Eggs promoters, would do well to ask themselves: "Are all of my neighbors (if they fail to agree with me) despicable 'tools of the special interests'? Are all newspapers, except National Ham and Eggs, unreliable, untruthful and vicious? Are the farmers I know monsters, who burn their crops so that the poor can have no food?"

California is being fed hate in such big doses that every conscientious, honest citizen needs to be on his guard. A movement that must rely on vituperation and hate in its effort to corral votes is a movement to be viewed with suspicion. The natural question is: "Why the smokescreen? Why the attempt to fan the fires of class hatred?"

Whether it be the Ham and Eggs pension movement, the Communist movement, Fascism, or some other ism, any movement that must fall back on hate to sell its wares has sacrificed its right to the support of Californians who still believe in American principles of decency and fair play.

EXPOSITION EVENTS

From Sept. 9 to Sept. 15

Treasure Island, Sept. 7—Entertainment and amusement offerings on Treasure Island will strike a new high level during the week of Saturday, Sept. 9 to and including Friday, Sept. 15, with Harry Owens and his Hawaiian entertainers following Phil Harris and his troupe midway during the week, presentation of Jose Iturbi, international composer, conductor and pianist for a concert at exceptionally low prices on Wednesday, Sept. 13, the new Sally Rand "Gay Paree" in operation, the famous dancer appearing in person, and Admission day bringing a monster celebration on Saturday, Sept. 9 to give the week a rousing start.

The popular Phil Harris and his orchestra, with a sparkling variety show, will give two free performances daily in Temple compound ard provide the music for the free nightly dances in the Treasure Island Music hall up to and including Monday, Sept. 11. On Tuesday this offering will be followed by Harry Owens with his Royal Hawaiian orchestra and Royal Hawaiian Sweethearts presenting south sea music and dancing as a feature of their new program, following the same schedule of two free shows daily in Temple compound and providing the music for the free dances at night.

Heading a magnificent new musical program, in which the greatest names in the world of cultural music will be brought to Treasure Island, Jose Iturbe, long a brilliant figure in the realms of music, will be heard in a concert in the California coliseum on Wednesday, Sept. 13. Bringing this type of music within the reach of all music lovers, the popular prices will be $1 for a series of three concerts which will include, in addition to Iturbe, Albert Coates, Sept. 20, celebrated British conductor with Miliza Korjus as guest singer, and Leopold Stowkowski of the Philadelphia Philharmonic symphony on Sept. 23. In each concert the noted visitors will be guest conductors of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, appearing in the Treasure Island concerts.

Appearing in person for 13 shows daily, presented hourly on the hour, the famous Sally Rand will appear in the new Gay Paree, which replaces the former Greenwich Village at the head of the Gayway, now rebuilt as a replica of a famous Paris section. Dancers, diving girls, sidewalk cafes, "Keyholes of Paris," Le Rat Mort Cafe, three dance orchestras and gay Parisian shops are included.

Heading the list of special days for the week will be the monster celebration planned for Admission day on Saturday, Sept. 9. This will be featured by a huge parade and a full afternoon of contests provided by uniformed drill and musical organizations of the Native Sons of the Golden West and Native Daughters of the Golden West.

The same date will bring special programs for Bank of America day, the colorful California Vintage Festival day and others. This will also be a "dime day" on which children under 12 will be admitted for ten cents, those from 12 to 18 for 25 cents.

Among other especially important celebrations for the week will be: Sons of Italy day on Sunday, Sept. 10, with a full day's fiesta program; Biggs day on Sept. 12; the National Council of Catholic Women on Thursday, Sept. 14, with a vast pageant during the afternoon in the Treasure Island Music hall ;special programs in the open air theater on Friday, Sept. 15 for Costa Rica, Honduras, El Salvador, Guatemala and Nicaragua, featured by marimba bands, singers and dancers. The same date has also been designated as San Leandro day, which will be featured by a special program of entertainment.

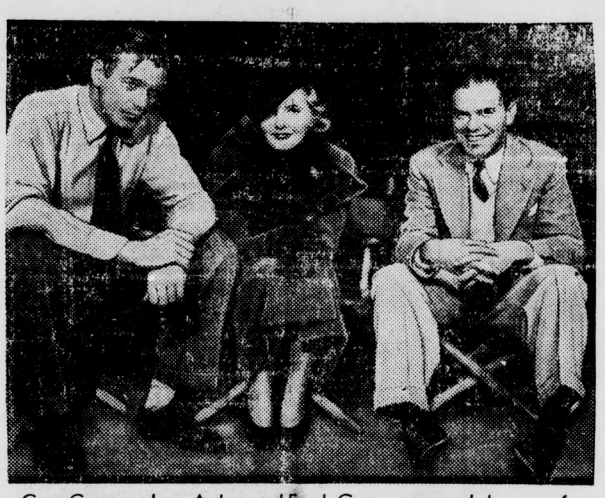
AT CAMPBELL THEATER



Gary Cooper, Jean Arthur and Frank Capra, stars and director of "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town"—A Columbia Picture

"Mr. Deeds Goes To Town" will be at the Campbell theater on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 7, 8 and 9. The best of Frank Capra's productions. Don't miss it.

Blanco's Campbell theater tonight opens a three day engagement of the best comedy program seen in this district for a long time, Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," and Irene Dunne and Melvyn Douglas in "Theodora Goes Wild."

Miss Dunne has long been known as a dramatic star, but as Theodora, Director Richard Bolesslawski gave the star free rein in her portrayal, and the result is an entirely new and sparkling Irene Dunne. Melvyn Douglass plays opposite Miss Dunne, with Rosalind Keith, Leona Maricle, Elizabeth Risdon, Spring Byington, Mary McLaren and others making up a strong supporting casts.

Sunday and Monday at the local theater will be "Frontier Marshal" with the Jones Family in "Quick Millions" an added attraction.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 12, 13 and 14 will be shown the long awaited picture, "The Wizard of Oz."

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Carboni are leaving Saturday for a several days vacation in San Francisco.

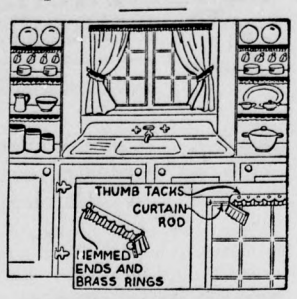
Shelf Edging Dresses Up Kitchen Windows



By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

SOME of us can remember seeing our mothers cut scalloped shelf papers. Dextrously they folded and snipped the edge in points or curves; sometimes adding a cut out diamond in the center of each scallop. For many there is more satisfaction in this creation of their own hands, than in using fancy lace edge paper by the roll. Today, we find that same satisfaction when we choose oilcloth shelf edgings—thinking in terms of color has a fascination even beyond scallops with diamonds in the center.

The suggestion sketched here for using shelf edging to dress up kitchen windows was sent in by a reader. The busy homemaker will appreciate the fact that the curtains are perfectly straight and plain and easy to remove for laundering. When windows and shelves match the effect is especially good. Banded towels may be of the same color, and tin containers for bread, sugar, and spices may be painted with bright enamel, to match.

The new Sewing Book No. 3 by Mrs. Spears is packed full of useful, money saving ideas, that almost any homemaker may put to practical use. Every idea is clearly illustrated with large sketches. You will be fascinated with the variety of interesting things to make for the home and for gifts. The price is only 10 cents postpaid. Send coin with name and address to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

President Hits Top in Precedent Breaking in Thanksgiving Change

Stirs Up More Comment Than Any Statement Ever Emanating From a Chief Executive; Element of Uncertainty Injected Makes It Harmful.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt's ability to keep things stirred up has been demonstrated numerous times since his accession to the White House. He seems to have a highly developed penchant for doing the unexpected. He calls it "precedent breaking." The results have been varied, although it strikes me that more of the "breaks" have been against him in recent months than when he first began to break precedents as President in 1933.

It appears, however, that Mr. Roosevelt reached a new peak in precedent breaking when he changed the date of our annual Thanksgiving day. Probably no statement ever forthcoming from a Chief Executive stirred up as much comment—unless perhaps it was the famous statement by Calvin Coolidge that "I do not choose to run." True, Mr. Roosevelt moved the date only one week, making this year's Thanksgiving day, Thursday, November 23, instead of November 30. The effect was the same, however, whether the change was one week or one month. Next year, he proposes that the date should be moved forward another week so that thereafter the date upon which we pay homage to God, as a nation, will be the second Thursday in November instead of the last Thursday of the month.

In announcing his plan, the President said he was desirous of rearranging the November holiday so that "holidays will be more evenly spaced." There is Labor day on the first Monday in September; there are no national holidays in October; Thanksgiving day in November and Christmas day near the end of December. So, Mr. Roosevelt said it seemed better to move Thanksgiving day a bit forward. His action, he explained, was taken after many business men had urged it as a means of giving more time for Christmas shopping. It is well known that shoppers do not really get going on their Christmas buying until after Thanksgiving day, and Mr. Roosevelt said the change might spread out the usual rush.

Thanksgiving Day Change Stirs Up Unusual Comment

Whatever the reason for the change, the announcement broke out all of the hissing steam that was pent up. Business interests here and there tried vainly to show a united front. But that was impossible because retailers disagreed as to its possible benefits. There was no disclosure by the President of the identity of those business interests he had consulted. Some lines of trade felt that terrific damage had been done them and their shouts were angry. Religious groups have remained silent, as organizations, but their individual members have had unpleasant things to say about the change. Altogether, the picture seems to show a bad reaction throughout the nation.

Let us look at the thing, however, from a practical standpoint:

Mr. Roosevelt made his announcement without consulting the state department. If he had sought advice there, he would have learned that a presidential proclamation can be enforced only in the District of Columbia and the territories of the United States. No state needs pay any attention to a White House proclamation unless it desires to do so. Hence, the declaration that Thanksgiving day shall be November 23, 1939, is binding only upon us folks here in Washington, and those in Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

There are 11 states that have laws fixing Thanksgiving day for the last Thursday in November of each year. Their legislatures are not in session. They will not be called into session again before the forthcoming Thanksgiving day. Which day will they celebrate and praise God for the blessings He has given them?

There is no national statute fixing the date. It is a traditional ceremonial day, a day which, to Americans, means actually the connection between our economic life and the Almighty Power that guided our nation from its inception, the link between material things and religion.

For the reasons of its establishment, it strikes me that there ought not be a national law on the subject. It is a sacred thing. But my guess is there will be a law and that law will say that the last Thursday in November shall be set aside as a national holiday for expression of our gratitude. I think such a law will be passed at the next session of congress.

Arouses Fear That All Our People Are Being Regimented

Mr. Roosevelt surely could not have guessed the repercussions, the backfire, that has greeted his announcement and that has continued in unabated fury. The politicians seized upon it for some of the dirtiest wisecracks I ever have heard. I heard one that really warrants repetition here. The remark recalled that King George, on his recent visit to North America, reset his birthday so that it could be celebrated while he was in Canada—that being a prerogative of a king and emperor. The question was then propounded whether our President contemplated a flexible holiday schedule that would permit celebration of events whenever the White House thought national morale was low.

There is more to that remark than just a laugh. Behind the thought is an indication of a fear that all of our people are being regimented, told when to shout or when to weep, when to work and when to play, what to eat and what to wear and not to think, but to obey. Of course, it is an exaggerated viewpoint; it is not so exaggerated, however, that it is not possible of attainment. It is to be remembered that the people of Russia, and then of Italy and then of Germany have gone through that very stage. It was a step which they took, and disregarded as unimportant. It led directly to the conditions under which those people now live and have their being, regimented all, controlled, beaten down, living a life of fear.

Now, lest I be misunderstood, I hasten to say that I believe there was no such thoughts as those in Mr. Roosevelt's mind. I believe his action was taken because of his ever-present urge to make changes. There are many persons who hold that it was another move by the President designed to keep people from thinking of their troubles, to help them forget the terrible struggles through which we have been, and are, passing.

Take a Look at Practical Side of the Situation

Again, as to the practical side and the results flowing from the breaking of another precedent:

Let us consider first the lithographing and printing industry of the country. There are thousands upon thousands of other businesses that use the product of the lithographer and the printer. Consider the calendar that hangs on your wall. It will show November 30 as the Day of Thanksgiving. The annual bill for calendars, paid for by industry and by each of us who buys a calendar, exceeds $100,000,000. The calendars are not useless, of course, but the fact that the "calendar is wrong" has some indescribable effect upon me.

Take the transportation industry. Officials begin planning many months ahead for tours, special rates, excursions. Public events and ceremonies have been scheduled. Each ties in with some other—scheduled for Thanksgiving day when Thanksgiving day was to be November 30. The printing industry has done its job for most of those things ahead even of today. What a mess that is going to be!

Many editorials have been written, many interviews given out, concerning the effect of the new Thanksgiving date on the college football "industry," for college football receipts run into millions of dollars every year. Through all of the years, traditional games—the big games—the peak of the season—has been the Thanksgiving day game for hundreds of colleges. But if Thursday, November 30, is just another Thursday, what about the "gate" of those games?

Element of Uncertainty Makes Change Harmful

And that brings us to the crux of this situation. It is the element of uncertainty that Mr. Roosevelt injected into our national life by the change in one holiday date that is harmful. Instead of promoting a feeling of security, my hunch is that the President has spread uncertainty and has caused confidence to crash in many a spot of which he never dreamed. Instead of creating a net increase in business by making a longer Christmas shopping period, I believe a cold analysis will show that the change will cost the country, as a whole, many millions of dollars in net losses.

Our nation has grown up, not in one piece, but in many pieces, each one fitted to another as smooth working as the gears of your automobile. When the engine turns over, it exerts pressure on the clutch, then on the drive shaft, then on the gears and then on the wheels, and the car moves. When any one unit of industry in America—any one phase of life—is changed suddenly, the clutch and the drive shaft and the gears and the wheels of others are affected. More than any other one thing that has happened in recent years, I believe, the President's announcement proves how closely knitted our lives are. It shows, too, that government can wreck national life as well as preserve and protect it.

TASTY SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPERS
(See Recipes Below)

Sunday Night Suppers

Even though you expect everyone to have had a noon meal with staying power on Sundays, people do like to eat when Sunday evening rolls 'round! To be sure, they like food that's somewhat lighter, and food that's out of the ordinary. So it's a grand time to leave the beaten path and serve something a little different.

If you serve left-overs, be sure to serve them in a new way or with an unusual accompaniment like the jellied chili sauce I've suggested in menu No. III. If you plan a meal especially for Sunday night, plan one which can be served "help-yourself" style and arrange foods, dishes and silver on the table so that guests may serve themselves. Appetites will be quickened by the eye-appealing arrangement of the table, and the air of informality makes Sunday night supper a sociable affair.

These menus are suited, too, to serving larger numbers — lodge groups, church organizations or clubs. Recipes for the main dish and salad in every menu are easily increased. Unless you have special recipes and equipment, cakes and pastries are likely to be better if the single recipe is used.

Lettuce and Tomatoes With Roquefort Cheese Dressing.
(Serves 6)

1 head lettuce
2 tomatoes
¼ pound Roquefort cheese (crumbled)
French dressing

Remove coarse outer leaves from head of lettuce. Cut into wedges. Peel tomatoes, remove stem end, and cut into eighths. Place in salad bowl with the lettuce. Add crumbled Roquefort cheese and French dressing. Toss lightly until well mixed.

Cocoa Marshmallow Cake.

2 tablespoons cocoa
½ cup sweet milk
2 cups brown sugar
3 eggs (separated)
½ cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sour milk

Place cocoa, sweet milk, 1 cup brown sugar, and 1 egg yolk (beaten) in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water, until mixture is well blended. Cool. Cream butter, and add remaining cup of brown sugar while beating constantly. Add the two remaining egg yolks, together with the vanilla extract and mix thoroughly. Then mix and sift all dry ingredients and add alternately with the sour milk. Beat egg whites stiff but not dry, and fold into the cake mixture.

Place in 2 well greased layer cake pans and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) approximately 30 minutes. Ice with boiled icing to which 8 marshmallows (cut in quarters) have been added.

Jellied Chili Sauce.

1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup chili sauce (or catsup)

Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Add to chili sauce, which has been heated to the boiling point, and stir until dissolved. Pour into tiny paper cups, individual molds, or small pan from which the chili sauce may be sliced or cut in attractive shapes when firm. Chill thoroughly before serving.

Tuna Casserole.

1 7-ounce can tuna
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup cooked peas
1 can button mushrooms
2 cups cooked noodles (medium width)
Salt, pepper and butter
1 cup milk

Butter individual baking dishes. Sprinkle tuna with lemon juice. (This brings out the tuna flavor). Arrange alternate layers of tuna, peas, mushrooms and noodles, putting noodles on top. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Dot top generously with butter. Pour milk into dish and top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes. (Serves 4-6.)

Toasted Loaf.

Trim top and side crusts from a loaf of unsliced white bread. Cut through the center of the loaf, lengthwise, cutting just to the lower crust, but not through it. Then cut crosswise, spacing the cuts about 2 inches apart. Brush top and sides generously with melted butter. Toast in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) until the loaf is golden brown. Serve hot.

There are so many points to be considered in planning meals. One which is all too likely to be overlooked is this—that the dessert is more than something to satisfy the family's "sweet tooth"; it really plays an important part in the menu.

Next week in this column Eleanor Howe will tell you why—and will give you, too—some of her favorite recipes for "Desserts That Are Different."

Clam Chowder.
(Serves 6.)

½ cup carrot (chopped)
2 tablespoons onion (chopped)
1¼ cups potato (chopped)
¾ cup celery (chopped fine)
1 pint clams
2 cups water and clam liquor
Salt and pepper to taste
1 pint milk
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons parsley
½ teaspoon paprika

Chop the vegetables in small pieces and place in large kettle. Chop the clams and add together with the clam liquor, water, salt, and pepper. Cover and cook about ½ hour, or until vegetables are tender. Scald milk. Make a smooth paste of the flour and water. Add half of this flour paste to the clam mixture and half to the scalded milk. Cook each, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Combine and add butter, parsley and paprika. Serve very hot.

Star Dust

★ Real Star Starters
★ What a 'Stand-In' Is
★ Jon Hall May Go Native

By Virginia Vale

AT THE studios of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer there is renewed interest in the filming of "Pocahontas"—if they do, they predict that early American history will come in for its rightful share of the spotlight. They've selected that continental glamour girl, Hedy LaMarr, to play the part of the Indian girl, Pocahontas, who captured the heart of Capt. John Smith when she, "whom no entreaty could prevail, got his head in her arms and laid her own upon his to save him from death," when he was captured by her father, Powhatan, and was about to have his brains beaten out.

You probably know any number of people who claim that they gave this or that motion picture star the push that started him or her on the road to fame and fortune. All too frequently those star-starters actually had nothing to do with the person's success.

There are two men who can shine in reflected glory, if they want to, but they're so busy shining in their own glory that they can't be bothered. One is a well-known tailor in Hollywood, Eddie Schmidt.

Adolphe Menjou went to him when he first tackled Hollywood. He knew the value of good clothes, but he hadn't any money. He wanted to make a bargain. If Eddie Schmidt would make him six suits, and trust him for them, he'd tell everybody where he got the clothes. That wardrobe was the thing that turned the balance in Menjou's favor.

The other star-maker is Sardi, who owns the famous restaurant in New York where screen and stage players eat every day in the week.

Not so very long ago William Gargan was stoney broke. He hadn't had a stage engagement for ten months, his wife was in the hospital. But he had to be seen in Sardi's, so that the theatrical world would know that he was still about.

Sardi had noticed him, and had faith in him. He invited the young actor to eat at his expense, also to entertain anyone who was important to him. The investment came to about $800 altogether. Leslie Howard was influential in helping Gargan to make a tremendous success in the stage version of "The Animal Kingdom," Hollywood dangled a contract—and Gargan was set. Both Menjou and Gargan paid their backers' bills the first moment that they had the money.

Isabelle Sheridan, Mary Pickford's cousin, is in the movies yet not in them—and she has no desire to step before a camera.

She's a stand-in—which means that she wears a star's costumes and stands patiently while lighting is tried out on her and the camera man figures what he wants. She's stood in for Constance Cummins, Merle Oberon, Virginia Bruce, Sally Eilers, Joan Blondell and various other actresses. At present she's doing it for Joan Blondell in Hal Roach's "The Housekeeper's Daughter."

Looks as if Jon Hall would go on playing native of the South Seas for the rest of his screen career. "Hurricane" started him, you may recall, and Edward Small's "South of Pago Pago" will keep up the good work.

Bette Davis' performance in "The Old Maid" is so good that people who've never liked her on the screen before are now admitting that the girl can act. And Warner Brothers' plans for screening "The Miracle" have been speeded up and put into production, after three years of discussion and preliminary work. Miss Davis will have the coveted role of the Nun.

ODDS AND ENDS — Sol Lesser is allowing Principal Productions employees an extra half hour for lunch, on condition that they'll play badminton during their additional time, on the courts across the street from his offices at Selznick-International . . . After trying for a year, Charles Correll of "Amos and Andy" has taught his dog to roll over . . . Irene Dunne thought you, the public, wouldn't like her as the hard-boiled heroine of "Front Page," so the part is being re-written.

5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK

Which cigarette gives the most actual smoking for your money? Here are the facts recently confirmed through impartial laboratory tests of 16 of the largest-selling brands:

1 CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.

2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED — 25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

Buy shrewdly. Get extra smoking and also enjoy the cooler, milder, tastier smoking of Camel's long-burning costlier tobaccos. Camel is the quality cigarette every smoker can afford.

Laughing Around the World
With IRVIN S. COBB

No Hope for Slavery

By IRVIN S. COBB

SOME twenty-five or thirty years ago an eccentric genius, Joe Mulhatton by name, and by birth a Kentuckian, exercised a vivid imagination in writing accounts for newspaper publication, or marvelous discoveries which he claimed to have made in obscure parts of his native state—and mine. He was the prototype of that equally gifted but anonymous genius who lately has made the town of Winsted, Conn., famous all over America by the sending out of press stories of faunal wonders and natural freaks which are alleged to have occurred in or near this one particular community.

Month after month Mulhatton plied his unique calling while his audience grew. He found a cavern in the Knobs that was larger than Mammoth cave and filled with huge mountains of solid ice; a meteorite that was bigger than any court-house in the state and all ablaze with rare and previously unclassified jewels; a breed of tree-climbing fish which had fins with claws on them. Always he gave complete details of the phenomena and, curious though it may seem, there were a great many persons in back districts who accepted his yarns as gospel truth.

One day he burst into print with the tale of a planter up on Paint Lick who had taught six pet monkeys to pick the worms off of growing tobacco. At that time an interesting character, "Bully" Mason, kept a hotel and saloon in the town of Lancaster in the lower edge of the Blue Grass country. "Bully" was an unreconstructed Confederate, and so credulous that he believed everything he read—even Mulhatton's yarns.

A group of tobacco growers, in for the day from the places on Buckeye Creek and Sugar Creek, took advantage of the old gentleman's trustful nature. Gathering in the bar room they harkened while one of the members read aloud the Mulhattonesque fiction and then all joined in a discussion of this latest development in agriculture. It was decided that a fund should be raised with which to import and purchase a carload of monkeys and to hire experts whose job it would be to educate them for service in the patches against that persistent enemy of the weed-grower—the tobacco worm.

All at once "Bully" broke in.

"Boys," he said, "don't you think of doing no such of a thing. Just about the time you get your monkeys trained right, the dam' Yankees will come down here agin and set 'em free!"

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach often pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in no time and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

ADEQUATE WIRING for ELECTRILIVING

Here is a practical common sense way to make sure of good wiring in your home. Plan your convenience outlets where they will fit in best with your furniture. Are there enough outlets to serve the lamps, clocks, radios and other electrical appliances we all use in this day of ELECTRILIVING?

Are these outlets in the right places so that you will not have to run long cords along walls? Planning house wiring according to furniture arrangement in each room is the practical way to get a good wiring job.

Trying to get light and operate a washer and iron from a light socket cheats you by causing voltage drop.

Light is dimmer and toaster slower if you do this in your kitchen. This double plug ugly is a robber.

Down goes electric pressure when a three-way plug is used. Causes lights to go dim or blink.

Avoid the make-shift of double and triple plugs in the home you are building or remodeling. Give your electrical contractor an honest chance to do a complete and adequate wiring job. Remember a low price on a wiring job like a low price on most anything is not always the best bargain.
